33. Which of the following two statements comes closer to your assessment of the United States' economy?

Statement A: On the basis of what I see for the future, the signs point to an economy that is going to be strong--jobs are being created, inflation is low, and the stock market is up.

Statement B: On the basis of what I see for the future, the signs point to an economy that is going to be in trouble--jobs are moving overseas, the budget deficit is growing, and too many jobs do not have health insurance or pensions. +

35. When it comes to federal taxes, which of the following two statements do you agree with more? (6042-34)

Statement A: The recent federal tax cuts were too large. We must keep the tax cuts for middle-class Americans, but repeal the tax cuts for people with incomes of more than two hundred thousand dollars per year to help pay for health care and education.

Statement B: The recent federal tax cuts were the right size. We must keep the tax cuts for all Americans and make them permanent, rather than let them expire, to make the economy strong.
